
Workshops

Graduate level workshops are short-term organized learning experiences which provide for active, hands-on participation or for concentrated study on a specialized topic. Students register as Continuing Education students and do not have to be formally admitted to the School of Graduate Studies.

Graduate level workshops are offered by the graduate departments under the course number "2900-Graduate Workshop." For each workshop registration, a transcript entry will be made showing the title, credit, and grade for the workshop.

Since graduate level workshops are not designed for the purpose of being a part of a graduate degree program, their credit shall not be applied toward graduate degree requirements.
